When censoring of my email becomes a National issue I start to wonder if I am still living in the USA or if I am living in a repressive third world regime. Where is homeland security now? It should be there to protect my freedoms - MOST IMPORTANTLY of all FREE SPEECH! This is a founding principle of our democracy. If I had to list ONE PRIORITY that I wanted my representatives to defend for me it would be the right to communicate with whomever I want about any issue. Clearly the Bush administration is threatened by the common people's ability to use the internet as a political organizing tool. Please stand up for every citizen's right to free speech and political organization! The big corporations already have more money and more powerful lobbies. The most important tool we have left is our ability to communicate with each other in order to organize! "These kinds of unbelievable encroachments on our freedoms is nothing short of evil and anathema to a free and democratic society. Again and again, the government and primarily the Republicans are mega-hypocrites in that they profess freedom and promote policies which are directly oppositional to their professions. I ask when and where will we ever have governing groups/parties who truly and unequivocally harbor sound judgements not unlike those of our forefathers. Jeffersonian democracy is all by dead with monied interests governing all of our daily lives. This must stop and dramatically and permanently turned around if we are to even possess a semblance of a democracy and for any hope of survival and in the end as well will spell the eventual deathknell of the very groups whose actions will have created what they think is for the net good of all. In the end, free markets and capitalism is being tested severely as to whether their one driving force "greed" will in the end survive. I think not and its effective and substantial end may not be more than a few decades away. Remember the French Revolution (as well as ours) and the "let them eat cake syndrome." The general populace will only be pushed so far without being compelled to take to the streets also. We must concentrate on the so-called virtues if we are to survive and I'm no big Jesus freak – after all we're talking about generally accepted morals, NOT RELIGION, ORGANIZED OR OTHERWISE. Question for which I've received no answer (after posing several times during the past 2 years) from the chief economist of the right wing Regent University, Dr. Walker. How can the religious right reconcile on the one hand free and unfettered governments and markets which says you're on your own while Christ's teachings which centers on helping thy neighbor, love thy neighbor, blessed are the poor, etc.????? Can anyone answer this question please with a rationale and convincing response supported by a solid and grounded philosophy in it without contradiction and of course hypocrisy? Dominic R. "Please represent the public interest and agency on this important issue, rather than the interest of a select few. The internet should be a commons for public communication, not parceled and restricted into a commodity, nor subject to monopolization. Radio and television have shown a degradation of quality and homogenization of content as consolidation has increased, to the benefit of those few holding sway and to the detriment of the listening and viewing public. Please do not allow this same blueprint for control and exclusion to be realized on the Internet. thank you"	Linda Kervin Logan, UT 84341
